

Stay A Little Stronger

(Richard Lamplough)

*I feel so barely real, you seem almost at your best.
It's that claret that I found you,
And all that love around you, I guess.
And I feel this even keel soon will slip away,
But in this land of never-never, we go on forever and a day.*

*So I'll speak now for a moment,
Though I'm weak now, I'll get stronger.
You can see now what strength that I have is yours.*

*And I feel we should make a deal shake hands and agree.
I'll stay a little stronger if you stay a little longer with me.*

*I feel we've both spun the wheel and though chances have been tough.
Often we've got lucky, it's just now we've not got lucky enough.
And I feel that no appeal is loving, brave and true.
It isn't any wonder, it just describes the wonder of you.*

*So much more now still to show you,
And you're sure how much I love you.
And you know now you can hold me as tight as you might.*

*Cause I feel as strong as steel as strong as I can be.
But I'd stay a little stronger if you'd stay a little longer with me.*

*I'll try to keep down my emotion,
You can sleep now if you want to.
It's just that deep down how I wish you could still hold on.*

*And I feel we made a deal, the contract's here to see.
I said I'd stay a little stronger if you'd stay a little longer with me.*

*You said you'd stay a little longer, a little longer with me.
Stay a little longer, a little longer with me.
Please stay a little longer with me.*
